Care of Your Deck

Thank you for choosing ES+Wood™ to build your deck. It should provide you with many years of serviceability and enjoyment.

As with any pressure treated wood product, in order to make sure that your deck retains its long term beauty and serviceability, we suggest the following steps for the care of your deck.

Your new deck may be stained, sealed or painted, within two to four weeks after installation or depending on your local weather conditions, after it has dried. However, staining, sealing or painting of your deck, is not required to protect or preserve the wood.

Our experience has shown that, unless your deck contains handling related marks or discoloration, it is not necessary to pre-clean or pressure wash your deck before applying a high-quality coating or sealant.

PROTECTING YOUR DECK

If you are going to stain, seal or paint your deck, we suggest that you use a high-quality product, either latex or oil based. There are many high-quality stains, sealers and paints available at your local building supply or paint store.

You should use a high-quality coating that provides you with the UV protection and finish, that you desire. We recommend that you test the products you select, to make sure they are compatible with your decking and produce the results you expect to receive.

CONTINUED CARE

You can determine the continued care of your deck by its use and appearance. Local conditions will affect the amount and type of maintenance your deck will require. The better care you take of your deck, the longer it will retain its beauty and serviceability.
